"With the addition of innovative resources and continued commitment from market favorites, the January 2024 Atlanta Market guarantees an inspired and impactful start to the buying season."

The winter 2024 edition of Las Vegas Market is slated for Jan. 28-Feb. 1 and offers West Coast retailers a destination to source gift, décor and furniture.

"Among winter market highlights, C11 [gift and lifestyle floors in Las Vegas] continues its trajectory as a leading lifestyle sourcing destination with the addition of new brands and sales agencies, and a new '(A) List' program taps top tastemakers to identify and display on-trend products in key categories," Belshaw said.

Additionally, ANDMORE's @Market App, which debuted in summer 2023, will debut new features for photo capture and the organization of favorite market finds with notes using QR codes. The app is available for iOS and Android users and can be used at ANDMORE's trade shows.

February's arrival brings NY NOW (Feb. 4-7) and Shoppe Object (Feb. 4-6), both located in Manhattan. This year, Shoppe Object will expand into a second venue.

"We're spreading our wings once again," said Jesse James, founder and director of Shoppe Object. "Over the past two shows, we delivered a 30% increase by adding a tent at our Pier 36 home, and now it's time to double that. With the addition of this brand new venue, part of the Essex Crossing complex and right at the subway hub, we have twice as much room to grow as the tent provided previously."

Gift Shop® Plus editors will be in attendance and sharing their latest finds and observations from the show floors. In the meantime, we present an array of new-to-market products to be on the lookout for while perusing showrooms this winter. 68

1 TREE MISSION

Paul Meyer, National Sales Manager | www.cooljewels.com
Cool Jewels offers a program to improve the earth for people and wildlife.

What is your mission?

1 Tree Mission embraces five main objectives: combat global warming, cleanse our air and water, preserve wildlife habitats, reforest the earth, and increase awareness of the importance of trees.

How do your products serve the mission?

Currently offerings are comprised of ten styles of handmade, semi-precious stone bead bracelets utilizing recycled cord and packaging. We will plant one tree for each bracelet sold. Trees provide all of the benefits described in our mission.

What are the plans for the future?

The Mission has committed to planting 120,000 trees in the first year. We will continue to enhance the product line in year two to be able to plant even more trees to have an even greater positive impact on our environment.

The 1 Tree Mission line provides retailers a nice selection to appeal to shoppers wanting to help with its mission. Circle 278.

How can retailers get involved?

The 1 Tree Mission line provides retailers with an excellent margin and a chance to do well by doing good. Their customers will also appreciate the superb value. Merchandising options include a 72 piece point-of-purchase (POP) display, 144 piece spinning counter unit and a 600 piece floor fixture, which enables retailers of any size to participate in the program and improve the earth for people and wildlife.

WORLDFINDS CAUSE BRACELETS

Kelly Weinberger, founder

Fair trade jewelry collection benefits an array of worthy causes

What is your mission?

WorldFinds mission is to empower women through fair trade. We design jewelry and accessories that create jobs for women in vulnerable communities in India.

How do your products serve the mission?

Our Cause Bracelets are fair trade made, creating lots of good in their production, and they also donate to worthy causes. The collection of twelve bracelets benefits organizations like Habitat for Humanity, Heifer International, the Wounded Warrior Project, Animal Care League, Sandy Hook Promise, and the Ocean Conservancy, just to name a few. The bracelets wholesale for $8.00 each and we donate 15% of the wholesale price to the causes.

What are the plans for the future?

The Cause Bracelet collection has done really well at a diverse range of retailers from gift shops to clothing boutiques to museum stores. We offer a spinner display, and they also merchandise nicely just arranged in a basket. We hope to continue to grow the grouping and be able to help even more organizations in the future - our list of non-profits we'd like to help is rather endless!

How can retailers get involved?

It's easy to support the artisans as well as the causes, just visit our website to set up a wholesale account, or contact us at info@worldfinds.com or 800-609-9303.

GLOBAL IS THE NEW LOCAL

If your customers are into Made in America, fret not, say wholesalers of globally sourced goods. "I personally see 'Made in America' and 'Fair Trade' as complementary movements, not necessarily competitive," said Kroh. "Fair trade places an emphasis on the rights and dignity of human beings. In my view the principles of fair trade should remain relevant regardless of geography. All people, whether in the Global North or South, deserve dignified working conditions and equitable trade relationships. The specifics of each case may vary around the world, but the core ideals of fairness and equality remain the same."

"We're all friends," added Kelly Weinberger of WorldFinds. "I think that all our missions are to create a better world through the products that we're sourcing."

The Kantha necklace from WorldFinds and other related handcrafted goods are manufactured according to fair trade principles in India, Circle 305.

Eco-Choice Awards for Fall 2013

by Sharon Naylor

Industry's cutting-edge green products recognized as Eco Choice winners at summer edition of NY NOW.

Summer in New York City brought NY NOW back to the Javits Center. Several eco-conscious products were part of the show's SustainAbility display with the best among them being nominated for and winning the coveted Eco-Choice Awards. The awards are sponsored by NY NOW and GREENRetailer magazine.

The SustainAbility display trains the spotlight on green gift and home products. In 2010, NY NOW raised the bar and created a criteria system with ranking codes—SustainAbility1 through SustainAbility3, the top-ranking 'Degree of SustainAbility' to indicate the extent to which a product or company meets standards of eco-friendly production practices and materials, fair trade specifications, socially responsible business practices, philanthropy, and other eco-smart indicators. The SustainAbility display is a curated exhibit of products that meets the highest standards of eco-consciousness.

In that vast field of eye-catching, inspiring gift and lifestyle items, just a handful of eco-friendly products were up for online balloting to win elite Eco-Choice Awards in the categories of Most Innovative, Most Sensitive Use of Materials, and Most Sellable.

"These companies represent multiple product categories, but all are committed to running sustainable, socially-conscious businesses," said Christian Falkenberg, NY NOW director and GLM senior vice president. "From 10 finalists in each of the three competition categories, these eco-friendly products were determined as winners by popular vote."

"As environmentally conscious gifts become increasingly sought after and even expected, these products show us that the definition of green has been changing over the years," said Patricia Norins, publisher of GREENRetailer. "They are trendy and edgy – the best combination of function and form. GREENRetailer is delighted to recognize these pioneering companies in keeping with our mission of encouraging cutting-edge developments in the industry."

Recycled Kantha Wrap Bracelet From WorldFinds (Westmont, IL)

This fair-trade bracelet is handmade from repurposed Kantha quilts and scraps left over from making larger bags. Textile ribbons are wrapped and twisted for a unique layered look. Worldfinds' founder and president Kelly Weinberger says the bracelets make for an excellent store display since they are available in assorted colors and patterns.

Each bracelet measures 28 1/2" long x 5/8" wide, is finished with a hammered brass hoop and lobster clasp closure. The bracelets are made in India by low-income women artisans working in a cooperative.

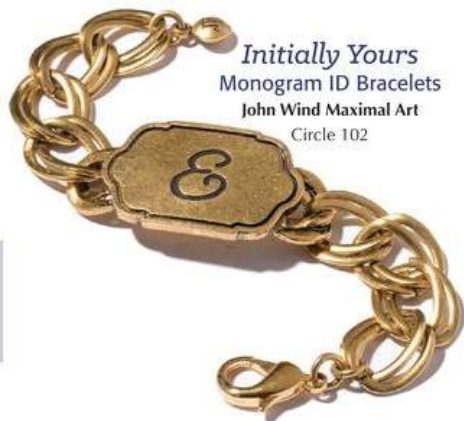

Weinberger says the Eco Choice award is great for bringing attention to themselves as a small company, and to spread the word about fair trade jewelry overall. "Hopefully, this will bring even more fair trade jewelry to the market," she says.
